

Wasatch Project Website

The Wasatch Project is a snowboard academy located in Utah. The group takes in kids in high school that want to pursue the competitive side of snowboarding while taking online courses. The academy's website has recently been taken down because it was outdated and not relevant. The site will showcase the amazing opportunities of the group as well as the relevant information that parents would want to know. The site should have videos as well as photos to show all of the things done by the group.